A LIVELY BATTLE

The Great Glove Fight between [illegible] Wilson won [illegible] the latter [illegible] is knocked down [illegible] times

[illegible]

[illegible] Harry Hill was [illegible] and [illegible] of the fight announced they were [illegible] be fought under the Marquis of Queensberry rules [illegible] minute rest [illegible] In case [illegible] If Wilson should fight four rounds Sullivan agreed to pay him $10 [illegible] gate money. Wilson [illegible] his gloved hand stepped forward. Sullivan sat and offered to bet that a round he would not be knocked [illegible] time. Sullivan declined the saying there was already enough money on [illegible] At [illegible] Harry Hill called time, when [illegible] in full view. Sullivan seemed to tower above his adversary. Wilson's frame is the perfect one of a fighter. His body is stout, legs [illegible] though he is not high as compared to Sullivan's mammoth physique. Sullivan weighed 190 pounds and Wilson 140. The Englishman, although manifestly no match for his powerful opponent, showed himself full of pluck and made a game fight. He stood the punishment inflicted by Sullivan and although knocked down a times fought against hope and pummeled and hammered in every conceivable manner. He managed to stand out for four rounds and won $1000 and his share of the gate money. He showed great cunning. In each round he would [illegible] to catch round his opponent's neck and hold by the arms in a [illegible] grip. The object was to prevent punishment during continuance of the round and hold his antagonist until the time was up. When he found himself unable to do this he would slip down and then slowly rising warily watch Sullivan, who was on the alert to catch him. He was very quick to dodge, and thus avoided several terrific blows, such as would have knocked down a horse over.

Round 1.—With a leading planted a light blow on Sullivan's face. The latter then hit the English man viciously three times in succession and knocked him down. He fought him all over the ring and on the ropes, planting stinging blows on his face and neck.

Round 2.—This round was a repetition of the first round only that Wilson instead of leading was on the defensive. Sullivan punched in hammer and tongs and landed Wilson out eight times. Wilson always managed to gain his feet before expiration of ten seconds, and he succeeded in getting one or two blows in on Sullivan, and when knocked down once or twice drew Sullivan on top of him.

Round 3.—This was a desperate one. Sullivan's teeth clinched and he rushed at Wilson and knocked him against the ropes and all over the ring, the Englishman standing up grimly and receiving the terrible slugging punishment. Once in a while he gained a few seconds by clinching and holding Sullivan's arms, but it was for a very few seconds only. In this round he was knocked down five times.

Round 4.—This round being a final one, and a [illegible] of the contest, people became greatly excited and abandoned their seats and massed themselves about the ring. Sullivan was angry. The battle thus far so far as the stakes were concerned, was in favor of Wilson. Time being called, Sullivan fairly leaped at Wilson. He pounded and hammered the Englishman, knocked him clear off his feet five times more, but the little fellow stuck to his job receiving all the punishment Sullivan could administer until the four minutes had expired and the fight was declared at an end. The time of the battle was 25 minutes including three minutes for rest between rounds. Sullivan and Wilson afterwards met at Harry Hill's when Sullivan paid over $1000 to Wilson. Fully 5000 people outside the building kept a large police force busy. Many minor fights occurred in Madison square. A prize fight has been already arranged between Wilson and Sullivan.

An Oregon Case Before the Star Route Court.

PROSPECTS OF ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS AGAIN CANVASSED

Senator Kellogg Publishes a Card on Star Route Affairs—The Nicaragua Canal Bill Ready for Action

[illegible]

WASHINGTON, July 18.—At [illegible] called Frank H Wilcox, of Oregon. He formerly resided in Arkansas and [illegible] as mail agent. He was on intimate terms with S W Dorsey and had corresponded with him. The letters he turned over to Attorney Woodward to use in collecting certain claims against Dorsey. He was asked to state what he [illegible] received these letters. Objection was made by all defendants except Dorsey. McSweeny said [illegible] have Wilcox tell all he knew. Merrick maintained that [illegible] evidence [illegible] against Dorsey it must be excluded from [illegible] though it only went as far as it related to the defendants. [illegible] witness [illegible] manufacture public opinion that he [illegible] newspaper articles alleging that [illegible] possibilities of the [illegible] and Brig [illegible] route. The court ruled the question out in the form in which it was put. This was modified so as to inquire what witness had done after he received the letters, counsel expressly stipulating that Dorsey would not be held responsible [illegible] witness unless the [illegible] authority was proved. Merrick pointed out the manifest disadvantage which prosecution labored under from the different positions assumed by counsel for the [illegible] One of the counsel said Merrick bared his breast and, with an air of conscious innocence, said "We will let in the evidence," while after receiving a nudge and a wink another of counsel would get up and object. Merrick argued with much feeling upon this point and one of his remarks referring to the appearance of collusion and subterfuge among counsel for defense called forth an [illegible] and heated denial from the gentlemen, and in fact a stormy scene was only prevented by the court peremptorily refusing to allow counsel to continue personalities. Bliss inquired whether they could not show that witness prepared petitions and other papers and transmitted them to S W Dorsey, the papers now being among files of the department. Court answered they could if they proposed to stop there, but the inquiry could not be pursued because it did not tend to criminate any one. Bliss said he had asked for copies of the letters, the original of which could not be obtained. They would prove Wilcox was promised money for preparation of petitions; that the money was not paid and that suits had been brought against Dorsey by witness to compel him to pay the money. McSweeney interrupted to inquire of Bliss if he intended to show by this witness that acting under Dorsey's instructions, he had ever obtained fraudulent petitions or done a corrupt act. He maintained that it was perfectly proper to manufacture public opinion by circulating papers to persons. They were not used as a rule, in furtherance of conspiracy. If prosecution believed they had been got up to conspire he wished to warn them defense were entirely ready and willing to meet them. Court said the order of introduction of evidence was in a great degree, discretionary with court. In this instance where it was asserted acts were done under authority, it was not proper to prove acts before showing authority had been offered. He therefore decided prosecution could not continue that line of inquiry. A number of papers were then presented to witness. He identified some of them as being in his father's handwriting. Bliss said he wished to show letters had passed into the hands of Dorsey and others who had been served with a notice requiring them to be produced in court and said in that event they could not proceed to prove the contents of letters. Witness was then asked if he had received pay from Dorsey for his services and had then discontinued the suit. Question was ruled out, court remarking that he did not see what connection this case had with proceedings in an Oregon court. He thought prosecution had better proceed at once to prove the contents of letters. Witness, in answer to Bliss, said he did not definitely remember the contents of letters. He read one of the copies presented and said he believed he had received something of the kind from Dorsey. Portions of them, however, he failed to recollect. The telegraphic dispatches were submitted to witness by Bliss but several objections against their reception were made and court said that admitting that the telegrams were genuine dispatches it was a curious fact that men often signed their persons names to telegrams and he was unwilling to let in such evidence unless it was shown Dorsey had acknowledged them as his dispatches. They were let in conditional upon prosecution proving such acknowledgment from Dorsey. Witness was then dismissed, defense waiving for the present the right of cross-examination.

I W Wilcox of Portland, Oregon, was the last witness. He identified several telegrams, petitions and letters. Witness was then shown some copies of the letters shown his son. He recognized them as being of about the same nature as letters received by him. He said he had corresponded with S W Dorsey, using his son's name. Court was adjourned before witness's testimony was concluded.

Thos G Putnam, a lawyer of Denver, testified he had commenced suit for Frank A Wilcox vs S W Dorsey and had had in his possession three letters from Dorsey to Wilcox. He had now only copies, which were here offered in evidence, but the court held that the prosecution must first establish Dorsey's connection with the letters which they said they could do.

After recess Putnam was recalled and said he had telegraphic correspondence with Woodward & Woodward, of Portland, Oregon, about the letters, as attorneys for Wilcox. Telegrams were produced to complete the evidence, but objection was made and after a long argument during which Merrick rebuked the unseemly conduct and levity of the defense the dispatches were admitted. They merely direct Putnam to copy the letters. A lawyer named Wright got the letters, and the suit against Dorsey was dismissed.

F M Wilcox was recalled and examined again on petitions for the Oregon route, but the court said it was unnecessary, as the petitions were valid.

Walsh was recalled and gave some general evidence and explained his connection with [illegible] He testified to a talk with Brady at the latter's request.

Bliss said he expected to prove about what appeared in public prints as coming from Walsh.

Witness continued that Brady told him he got 20 per cent from favored contractors and any one who refused to pay was a fool.

Ingersoll said no man would ever be [illegible] enough to imagine this statement true.

Bliss and Merrick made rejoinder that Brady had [illegible] himself to Walsh at that interview.

The Prospect of Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A feeling of utter indifference to every question but that of adjournment seems to pervade the capitol, and senators and representatives are alike talking of ending the session by August 1st. Everything depends on the amount of time consumed by the senate in discussion of the internal revenue bill. Morrill says if no other business intervenes it can be passed next Saturday. Democratic members of the house declare they have no wish to enter upon a protective tariff debate and they believe the bill will be disposed of when three days of the [illegible] The sundry civil and naval appropriation bills remain to be passed by the senate, and conference committees will then take them in charge and speedily settle the disagreement between the two houses. If the senate finishes the internal revenue bill by the end of this week or early in the week [illegible] house will hold night sessions there is no reason why public business should not be completed on or before the 1st of August. A Card From Senator Kellogg

Senator Kellogg [illegible] says: It is true that [illegible] to have business relations with Walsh in capacity of banker. I am sure the testimony of Walsh as it was given before the grand jury would lead the public into reaching the same conclusion that the grand jury reached. The purpose of Walsh evidently has been in making the public statement was to place himself in a better light before the public than that which the grand jury left him in when they came into court and said by their action that his testimony was not worthy of belief. The action of the grand jury relieves me of the necessity of replying to Walsh's statements in detail. If however when the grand jury again meet they desire to institute an inquiry as to whether Walsh has been guilty of perjury in stating he divided the proceeds of postal drafts referred to by him between myself and Brady, or in making other statements affecting me, I shall hold myself ready to go before them for examination.

Confirmations.

Among confirmations by senate to-day are the following: Edwin Eels, Indian Agent at Nesqually W T; Robert H Milroy at Yakima W T; D P B Pride, Register of Land Office at Boise City; and Lot Livermore, Postmaster at Pendleton, Oregon.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate

WASHINGTON, July 18.—George advocated adoption of an amendment which he proposed repealing the duty on machinery for manufacture of cotton or woolen goods, on agricultural implements and on cotton ties.

The presiding officer stated the pending amendment was that offered by Beck reducing tax on manufactured tobacco to 10 cents per pound.

Beck supported his proposition as being one of substantial relief.

Johnston advocated a proposed amendment reducing the tax on tobacco to 8 cents per pound.

Sherman in discussion of the question as to how far it would be safe to reduce the revenue of the country called attention to the remarkable change in the balance of trade to the prospect of a favorable wheat crop in Europe and to the widespread strikes now in progress as being circumstances which should not be overlooked in considering whether there would be a large surplus in the treasury at the end of the present fiscal year. Appropriations this year were much larger than last year, and according to the best computation, the surplus in the treasury would not exceed, if it would reach $40,000,000. Pending further discussion the subject went over.

House amendment was concurred in to senate bill to encourage and promote telegraphic communication between America and Europe. After executive session senate adjourned.

House.

Robeson accused Hewitt of printing speeches never delivered on the subject of naval affairs. He [illegible] an animal which shrunk from the face of man and prowled around graves (referring to Hewitt's attack on Isaiah Hanscom, now dead). He could not see how much of his speech was delivered. He [illegible] to deliver it all, and accepted the responsibility of it.

Hewitt finally declared Robeson worthy only of utter contempt. [Applause by democrats and since a by republicans.] If Robeson assumed the sins of his subordinates, then he (Hewitt) declared the contracts were [illegible] were corrupt and he charged the iniquity of them against Robeson.

Robeson said he had heard Hewitt say he objected to being called a son in law of Peter Cooper and the time would come when Cooper's pride would be that he was father-in-law of Mr Hewitt. Peter Cooper's name will be known long after that of his aspiring son in law is lost and forgotten. The forgery of the Morey letter was a crime of the deepest dye and vilest iniquity, and while he did not charge Hewitt with having written it he considered that the man who stood by the telegraph window and telegraphed to Californians too late for denial after the dead president had denied it, that it was absolutely known to be genuine, committed a crime as detestable.

Hewitt—I did not do it.

Robeson—It can be proved.

Hewitt—No, sir. I deny it. I can prove it.

Robeson—Ask for a committee to investigate the subject.

Hewitt—I do not ask for it.

Robeson—I will aid you with all my might in the investigation.

Brown insisted on regular order, and the speaker refused to strike out from the record the objectionable words.

House refused 105 to 76 to fix a date for consideration of the bill admitting Dakota on the 13th of December.

Rules were suspended and senate bill passed 120 to 26 for sale of the old New York postoffice building for not less than $500,000. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, July 18

Unanimous reports returned from the election committee that Reed of Maine and Cobell of Virginia are entitled to seats were adopted.

The Smalls-Tillman case of South Carolina being called, democrats filibustered there being a short of a quorum.

At 5 o'clock republicans succeeded in getting a quorum and the contested election case was taken up. Calkins allowed two hours for discussion.

Waite opened the debate in favor of Smalls. [illegible] Adjourned.

Parliamentary Proceedings.

LONDON, July 17.—Sir Charles Dilke said the porte has not definitely answered the identical note of the powers asking for dispatch of Turkish troops to Egypt.

Gorst (conservative) gave notice of a motion of censure [illegible] the failure of the government to prevent the destruction of Alexandria.

Campbell Bannerman, financial secretary of the war office, read a telegram from rear admiral at Port Said concerning affairs at that place.

John Bright, referring to his resignation, stated he had nothing to explain or defend. The sole reason of his retirement was he could not concur in the government's Egyptian policy. He had for forty years held and taught the doctrines of peace and he still believed he could not consistently approve the proceedings at Alexandria. He believed the moral law applied to nations as well as to individuals and that the proceedings he disapproved were violations thereof and of international law. If he had not solely retired it was because of his regard for Gladstone and his other colleagues. In a [illegible] he would have [illegible] to [illegible] his entirely continued or been in constant warfare with his colleagues.

Gladstone briefly and highly eulogized Bright. He said he agreed with the principles but not with his application of them.

Heavy and almost incessant rains have [illegible] Turnips, beets and potatoes suffer severely. If the weather improves there will still be hope of recovery.

THE WAR IN EGYPT.

Arabi Pasha's Army Awaiting an Attack of the British.

THE KHEDIVE ORDERS DISMISSAL OF HIS UNRULY SUBJECT

A Holy War Proclaimed in Egypt—Europeans Killed at Kafr el Dwar—A Panic Prevailing at Cairo and Europeans Leaving Daily

[illegible]

ALEXANDRIA, July 18.—Arabi Pasha has [illegible] telegraph which connected him with the [illegible] with him and messengers also, have been [illegible] the British [illegible] an Egyptian officer bearing the Khedive's dismissal of Arabi [illegible] The authorities allege that they can [illegible] willing to convey a [illegible] Arabi [illegible] would [illegible] bearing his dismissal.

Later.—The khedive has found an officer willing to [illegible] Arabi Pasha's dismissal to his camp.

Ravages continue [illegible] The offer of [illegible] Admiral Seymour has made to [illegible] Egyptian soldiers [illegible] to the khedive [illegible] considerable inducement [illegible] and will [illegible] sanitary operations. A large number of [illegible] bodies were [illegible]

A [illegible] at several points [illegible] aboard their vessels last night but a [illegible] party was landed to-day.

Arabi's Resolution

ALEXANDRIA, July 19.—Arabi Pasha's army is strongly posted and all Bedouins lately hovering around the city have disappeared. Arabi Pasha has written in reply to the khedive's demands a long letter which the khedive declares unsatisfactory. Arabi says he did not intend to make war but as the powers are determined to force an attack, he considers it better to fight at once. He expresses willingness to come to Alexandria if the khedive will induce the English fleet and troops to withdraw. If the khedive cannot do this, Arabi recommends him to send a minister to his camp to discuss the situation.

A False Alarm

ALEXANDRIA, [illegible] P M, July 17.—This morning sailors drew up close to their gatling guns and marines were ordered to get ready for attack, as [illegible] sent word Arabi Pasha was coming. [illegible] sailors communicated with Americans and asked them to get ready and be prepared on hearing the alarm sounded. Seamen at the palace of justice and American consulate prepared and having got all their ammunition ready waited for the signal. They waited until a time when they heard the alarm was false. Plenty of mules are landed, so that batteries which also have been landed so that one force is ready to move at a moment's notice. A large number of people are returning ashore.

Arabi Pasha Displaced.

Ragheb Pasha, president of the ministry of Turkey, wrote a letter to Seymour that preparations which Arabi is making are against the will of the khedive and government; that Arabi Pasha has been ordered to suspend them, and that the khedive has decided to dismiss him but that danger of repetition at Cairo and elsewhere of the fatal disasters in Alexandria have induced the khedive to temporarily defer the publication of his declaration. The international tribunal and postoffice has been reinstated. One hotel is opened, and victuals are arriving from the country. Streets from the custom house to grand square are cleared of ruins and made passable for carriages, dangerous houses being demolished with dynamite. It is reported two British sentries were shot last night by Arabs armed with Remington rifles. During a reconnoissance yesterday Arabi's troops were found entrenched, but seemed to lack proper implements.

Egyptian War Notes.

ALEXANDRIA, July 17.—The iron clads Minotaur, Sultan and [illegible] have arrived off Aboukir to prevent Arabi Pasha cutting dykes. A white flag was hoisted directly when ships appeared. One of two body guards of the khedive, who rode out to Kafr El Dwar yesterday evening on a reconnoissance galloped off and joined Arabi Pasha.

Several Arabs were killed last night for incendiarism and three of the khedive's grooms were killed by the English guard at Ras El Tin palace by mistake. An Arab soldier was also tied to a tree in Mahomet Ali square and shot in presence of Arabs and Europeans. Despite these severe examples, pillaging continues.

Fears of an outbreak of natives in Cairo are increasing.

Arabs are said to be about 12 miles from Port Said and that some troops are near Suez.

Intelligence is received from Cairo to the effect that police decline to permit Arabi Pasha to enter the city. Five Bedouin chiefs came in and swore allegiance to the khedive.

It is stated that orders have been received from home enjoining the British to content themselves with maintaining order.

A large number of Arabs are returning from the country.

Arabi Pasha has appointed Ali Jerme, a notorious Arab, to command of the Suez canal.

ALEXANDRIA, July 18.—There was an attempt last evening to set fire to St Marks buildings, head quarters of Americans in Alexandria.

Arabi and Toulbi Pashas have utterly lost prestige by their gross cowardice. During the bombardment artillerymen were kept at their guns on the 11th inst by infantry posted under cover. The khedive states 205 Europeans have been killed at Kafr el Dwar. The numerous executions at Alexandria excite some comment among the liberal party in press and parliament.

MARSEILLES, July 18.—All French marines retired from service, who have not served fifty one months, are ordered to return to the navy.

LAVALETTA, Malta, July 18.—The Galena has returned from Alexandria. The troop-ship Malabar has arrived from Gibraltar.

PORTSMOUTH, England, July 18.—The troop ship Euphrates has been ordered to be in readiness within 12 hours. She will take 1000 men to Egypt.

LONDON, July 18.—It is stated government has informed ship-owners it will not require to hire any more transports.

A Quiet Night Passed.

ALEXANDRIA, July 18.—Last night was quiet. The lines are now very strongly guarded, and fires nearly all extinguished. Police arrangements thoroughly effective. A correspondent has opened communication with the camp of Arabi Pasha, which his informant says consists of a little over 5000 men, who are intensely discontented and surrounded by starving women and children. Recruits of the west class are still being enlisted by Arabi with promises of unlimited plunder and his force is held together by the assertion that the English will kill all returning to the city.

Taffy for the Blue Jackets.

LONDON, July 18.—A leading editorial article in the Morning Post says the behavior of the American admiral and his men at Alexandria is beyond all praise.

Post editorial: Amid diplomatic protests, European uncertainties, conferences, and naval demonstrations of imbecility it is refreshing to find a commander [illegible] able and willing, on his own account to say what he thinks and do what he says. Sixty marines physically speaking could not do much, but there is a way of giving support which quadruples its value. The conduct of American's during the night of the alarm that Arabi Pasha was coming contrasts remarkably with that of French and Italians.

Police Precautions.

ALEXANDRIA, July 18.—Ramleh will not be occupied and five hundred marines will occupy seven different centers guarding the whole town. Native police are organizing to aid military detectives in searching for suspicious persons.

A Holy War Proclaimed

8:30 P M.—Very few houses are now on fire. Refugees from Cairo report a holy war being proclaimed and Europeans being massacred in Tantah, Mansurah and Seagezig. A consul has been killed at the latter place.

English, Americans and Greek sailors and marines vie with one another in doing good solid work.

France's Co-operation Suggested

PARIS, July 18.—A correspondent says the idea of renewal of the close co-operation of France with England has now forced itself upon the French government. Cabinet council has adopted a resolution to this effect. The resolution is conditional in three things viz: In key's reply to the identical note of the powers [illegible] the porte to send troops to Egypt [illegible] of the conference and submit to parliament [illegible] subject to these conditions [illegible] governments are [illegible] regard to [illegible] Egypt.

Reports on several branches of christian work not especially denominational carried on by several of our members occupied the forenoon.

Chaplain and Mrs Stubbs reported on the work of the American Seamen's Friend Society. He spoke of the object of the society to improve the condition of seamen in commerce in every possible respect, and of its work of preaching, visiting the sick and dying, and endeavoring to supply the place of parents and friends, of scattering its publications, sending forth loan libraries and establishing sailors' homes, reading rooms and savings banks, so that more than a million and a half of dollars have been saved to seamen and their friends. He spoke of the character of the class labored with, and of the results especially on this coast and in Portland. They both related some interesting incidents in the work. By vote the work was commended to the sympathies, prayers and helping hands of the church.

Rev M Eells read a report on the Indian mission work at Skokomish during the past eleven years which was encouraging. Resolutions were passed which favored allowing the Indian all the rights which can be claimed under our government as fast as he shall prove himself capable of comprehending and able to comply with the spirit of our laws, Bible teaching, as the successful power to elevate the Indian, the preference of moral and Christian persons as agents, employes and teachers even if government and missionary bodies involve partnership, the abandoning of the reservation system, the allotment of lands in severalty, and the selling of all not needed by the Indian, the funds thus derived to be used for their benefit and the maintenance of industrial training schools for Indian youth.

The subject of the deaf mutes was presented by Rev P S Knight, the superintendent of the state deaf and dumb asylum. He stated that one in 2[illegible] to a hundred white persons are born deaf and dumb; that there are about one hundred in Oregon and Washington, about forty of whom are of school age; that for several years the lip language has been used with success among a small portion of the whole. They can learn the sign language in three months and in one year can learn to understand lectures, sermons and the news of the day. He spoke of the difficulties owing often to some lack in the pupil, physical, mental or moral. He found it a laborious work and asked for our prayers and sympathies, and by vote this work was commended to the attention and support of all Christians and patriotic citizens.

Bro A C Wright, missionary of the American S S Union, presented the work of that society. He stated its object to be to open Sabbath schools which should be undenominational in destitute regions to aid weak ones and scatter Christian literature. He also gave a sketch of the society's work. During five months while Mr Wright has been at work on our coast he has organized twenty three schools, with 62 scholars, aided thirty more with 457 scholars, distributed nearly three hundred bibles and testaments and travelled over three thousand miles. He is supported by one man in Hartford, Conn. He related several interesting incidents, and spoke of destitute regions found even very near to Portland. By vote his work was commended to the sympathy and co-operation of the churches where he may labor.

It was voted to publish five hundred copies of the minutes, to request the essays and reports for publication in the papers, and Messrs Knight, Macrum and Parrish were appointed a publishing committee.

Walla Walla and Albany both having sent requests that the association meet with them next year, the former place was chosen and Mr Cobleigh added to the business committee.

Resolutions in memoriam of the late Mrs I W Case of Astoria, a member of the business committee were passed.

The Pacific of San Francisco, was commended to the churches.

A half hour was spent in discussing the essay read the previous day on the Essentials of Christian Doctrine, in which Messrs Atkinson, Clark, Eells, Knight, Stubbs and Ellis gave various theological opinions and ideas.

The last hour was spent in considering Our "work in the Northwest." Dr Atkinson, an old worker, spoke of the worldliness and money-mania of the people as the obstacle to the gospel, yet that it was not soul satisfying, the gospel being the only thing which will satisfy the soul. He was followed by Mr Cobleigh, who has recently arrived, who spoke of the work from that standpoint, which was earnest and hopeful.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 19, 1882

AN OPEN FARCE.

It would be better to end at once the alleged proceedings against the star route rascals than to prolong the miserable farce going on from day to day at Washington. Since it is evident that the swindlers are to be protected at all hazards, and if necessary without the least regard to decency, the better course would be to dismiss the cases once for all, and boldly tell the country that there was no intention of allowing them to be convicted. The court is as accommodating to the defendants as the latter could possibly wish it. It rules out all the testimony that could lead up to the disclosure of what it is most essential to prove, gives the defense all the advantage of technical objections that it asks for and even more, and in general makes the miscalled trial a most despicable travesty of the proceedings of a court of justice. Let the reader take note of what is being done in the alleged investigation of the large-handed robberies perpetrated by manipulation of certain routes in Oregon. S. W. Dorsey received a large number of mail contracts in Oregon and Washington, which he took at low rates, with the purpose of having the service extended and the pay increased. F. R. Wilcox was his agent in Oregon. Dorsey had known Wilcox in Arkansas and fixed upon him as the man to help him work up to higher figures the mail contracts in which he had become interested. He first telegraphed to persons in Portland to learn if Wilcox was here. Having ascertained that he was, he wrote him, stating what service he wanted performed, and directed him to go first to Eugene City, giving instructions at the same time how to get up petitions, have them signed, and make sub-contracts for carrying the mails. The petitions were to be forwarded to Washington to be used in getting the service and the pay increased. Wilcox was to receive five dollars a day and his expenses. In April, 1879, he received from Dorsey a telegraphic draft for money, and went at once to Eugene City where he received Dorsey's letters, with memoranda directing him how to proceed. The route which Dorsey wished to "operate on" first was the route from Eugene City across the Cascade mountains to Mitchell, in eastern Oregon, by way of Prineville. That he might get increase of service on this almost wholly unnecessary route, Dorsey drew up and sent to Wilcox a form of petition on which signatures were to be obtained and forwarded to the postmaster general, adding by way of caution to Wilcox the injunction: "Of course you want the wording, as well as the handwriting of each person, to be as different as possible." These "petitions" were sent on, and Dorsey got the accommodating Brady to increase the pay on the route from $2468 to $21,460 a year.

This operation may be taken as a specimen of the work done in this state by the gang now on trial at Washington. Dorsey refused or failed to pay Wilcox in accord with his contract, and Wilcox began suit for the money. The papers, including Dorsey's letters and the principal part of his instructions, were sent to a Denver attorney, to be used in prosecution of the suit. The affair became public and was making a great stir, whereupon Dorsey paid Wilcox's claim, and recovered the letters and papers he had sent to Wilcox. These facts became public in May, 1881, a year and two months ago.

Now, after this long period of delay, which has afforded the perpetrators of these frauds full time and opportunity to get everything in train to foil the prosecution and outface the whole proceeding, Wilcox is called to Washington to testify. At the very beginning he was stopped by a ruling of the court, to the effect that he must produce Dorsey's letter under which authority to act for him was conferred. But Dorsey had taken care to get possession of this and other letters through the negotiation at Denver, and of course the prosecution could get no further in that direction. Then, in order to prove Wilcox's agency and service, he was asked whether he had received his pay from Dorsey, and had for this reason discontinued the suit against him? Once more the court favored the defendants by ruling out the question, remarking that it could not see what connection this case had with the proceedings in an Oregon court! Next time telegraphic dispatches from Dorsey to Wilcox were submitted, but the court was again equal to the emergency. "It was 'a curious fact,'" the court said, "that men often signed other persons' names to telegrams," and it was "unwilling to let in such evidence unless Dorsey acknowledged them as his dispatches." They were, however, let in "conditional upon prosecution proving such acknowledgment from Dorsey." Was a more disgusting farce ever presented? Dorsey will acknowledge the telegrams, of course, anxious as he is to have the whole matter brought to light. It was with this purpose, undoubtedly, that he paid the money to the Denver attorney to get the letters and other documents, and to satisfy Wilcox's claim.

The theory of the court as to the signing of Dorsey's name to the telegrams by some one else is equally conclusive. Nothing could be more probable than that somebody else was doing all this work on Dorsey's mail contracts without Dorsey's knowledge—sending instructions to Oregon by letter and telegraph, transmitting money, getting up alleged petitions for unnecessary increase of mail service, securing approval of the frauds at the department, and pocketing the profits of the transaction. The judge appears to be convinced that some villain has been dealing with Dorsey's good name in a most scoundrelly way. According to this theory, Dorsey was so hurt that he went to Denver, paid the money and got all the forged documents he could gather up, and has since been unable to trust his emotions so far as to allow anybody to see them. It is evident from the whole course of the proceedings that we shall soon have a verdict in these cases which will afford a complete vindication of the honorable character and conduct of Dorsey, Brady and the rest of these persecuted men, the purity of whose lives stands up as a splendid mirror of disinterested American citizenship. They will go forth completely "vindicated,"—for the pork has been divided with excellent judgment, and there was plenty of it to put in all the places where it would do most good, and still leave enough to make the venture a highly profitable one.

NOT SO BAD, AFTER ALL.

A member of THE OREGONIAN staff who returned last night from a hurried trip into the inland empire, reports that the fears about short crops in the eastern counties are somewhat exaggerated. About Pendleton and Weston the yield will be light, say half a crop; but the great amount of local improvements, including railroad and bridge building, will create an almost entire local demand for it at not less than seventy cents, which is a good price on a home market and pays as much to the farmer as ninety cents export. Going north the crops begin to improve gradually, and while the farms on Yellow Hawk and Dry Creek are not up to their usual standard of fertility, those on the Coppei and the Touchet show a bountiful yield of heavy heads and short straw. Our reporter took a buggy and went to Waitsburg by the Coppei route, returning by the lower road through Spring Valley and Cram Hollow. The yield continues good after crossing the Touchet, all the way up to the Pataha, but falls off again after crossing Snake river. Harvesting will commence in about ten days all along the great wheat belt, of which Dayton is now the virtual center. And while it is not equal to the yield of 1879 it is far ahead of that of 1878, and there is nearly twice the acreage in wheat alone, saying nothing of corn or flax. It is by no means so bad as first supposed.

THE PRIZE FIGHT.

We have from New York, by telegraph, graphic details of a grand "international" mill between those distinguished international characters, Sullivan and Wilson. People who like to read of bloody noses, bruised mugs, and brutality in general, will find entertainment in the report. An interesting discussion as to the propriety of printing such reports was carried on a few months ago in eastern papers, the mill at New Orleans between Sullivan and Wilson furnishing a text and an illustration. The Chicago Tribune printed a full page describing the fight, and in the same issue an editorial condemning it as a brutal piece of business and an outrage upon decency. Its details were printed, said the editorial, because the public demanded them, and a general newspaper could not afford to omit them. It was purely a matter of business, in which the Tribune furnished its sporting readers the information they wanted just as it did grain dealers the information which they desired. Other papers took the same view of the matter, only one or two of limited circulation and poor standing failing to give full reports. The interest which these affairs create so far away as here is great and unaccountable. No less than thirty persons, the larger portion of them men of respectability, and even of cultivation, called at THE OREGONIAN office last night to learn the result, too impatient to wait till the paper should be printed. Certainly these people are not moved by the curiosity of lofty patriotism. The success of the American bruiser could not afford the basis of patriotic pride, or his defeat of patriotic humiliation. There are, indeed, some queer phases of human nature.

ENGLISH SHIP-BUILDING.

In the ship yards of the United Kingdom during the year 1881 there were built 845 vessels, against 822 in 1880, 807 in 1879, 1084 in 1878 and 1092 in 1877. But the tendency is to build ships of larger size than formerly; so that while the tonnage of 1092 vessels built in 1877 was 433,050 tons, that of 845 vessels built in 1881 was 501,184 tons. The change in recent years from sailing to steam vessels had what must be regarded as an abnormal influence on the industry a few years back, and the high figures of 1874, when the tonnage built to carry the British flag aggregated 521,203 tons (the maximum total), must no doubt be attributed to this change. The gradual substitution of steam for sailing ships, and the influence which it must have exerted upon the iron and steel trades, is indicated by the fact that, while even as late as 1877 703 sailing ships, with an aggregate capacity of 212,320 tons were built, against only 389 steamers, with an aggregate capacity of 221,330 tons, last year 359 sailing vessels, with an aggregate capacity of only 92,420 tons, were built against 486 steamers, with an aggregate capacity of 408,764 tons. Indeed the steam tonnage alone constructed last year exceeded the aggregate of the sailing and steam tonnage in any year previous, since 1878.

The above figures include only vessels built to carry the British flag, not those built for foreigners. The tonnage built in the United Kingdom last year for foreigners showed a total of 107,694 tons, against 65,055 tons in 1880 and 49,155 tons in 1879. The total of both descriptions (about 700,000), two-thirds of which were steam tonnage, shows how rapidly Great Britian is absorbing an important industry of the world, and how fast steam is superseding sails in ocean commerce.

THE RACES.

That the popularity of turf sports is rapidly increasing in the Northwest and in this city admits of no doubt. It is not yet two years since the work of constructing a race track on the height south of East Portland was begun and now owing to the vigorous efforts of a capable management, Portland has the best appointed racing ground in the country, and the membership of the association by which it is owned and controlled consists almost wholly of business men of standing and character. And it is for this reason, in the main, that the enterprise has been so successful, and drawn to its support a class of people who have hitherto held aloof from active participation in turf sports. The result is that Portland gives this year for trotting and running more money than any other two places in this whole region and every year will see a marked increase in the purses. The racing meeting to open to-day will be a triumph for the Northwestern District Agricultural Association. The recognized cracks of Oregon and Washington are here and will compete for purses and honors with their best efforts, and there is assurance that the attendance will be large.

Recent statements published concerning the financial results to companies engaged in insuring from fire are of interest. It appears that in the aggregate period of 167 years the 22 largest foreign companies doing business in the United States paid $61 in losses and $30 in expenses for every $100 received in premiums. This indicates an average profit of only nine per cent. Another point brought out is that in underwriting in 22 states, through an aggregate period of 220 years (excluding the Boston and Chicago fires), the profit on premiums received during that time, amounting to about $641,000,000, has been 18¼ per cent. This is the record of the strong companies. With the heavy competition which they have shown themselves able to withstand, it does not appear strange in the light of their earnings, that the records of the courts of the country contain the obituaries of so many once promising insurance concerns.

It was Thomas Jefferson and not Andrew Jackson who introduced the practice of turning out capable and faithful officers, to make places for his own partisans. He said, in reply to a remonstrance against this, in the case of a high-toned officer of the army of independence, put out to make a place for a low demagogue, that when he had equalized things he hoped to return to the former practice, when the only questions as to an officer were: "Is he honest? Is he capable? Is he faithful to the constitution?" Neither he nor his democratic successors ever returned to the former practice. The degradation which he brought in stuck like original sin. Jackson improved on it to make a clean sweep of the offices.

The Congregationalists at their convention held last week at the Dalles, decided to establish in Oregon and probably at Forest Grove, a divinity school for the education of young men who wish to enter the Congregational ministry. The movement was inaugurated by Rev. Dr. F. R. Marvin, pastor of the First Congregational church of this city, and was warmly supported by delegates from all parts of the state and from Washington territory. The movement appears timely, and will doubtless strengthen the denomination in this part of the country. The trustees chosen are Rev. Dr. Atkinson, Rev. Dr. Marvin, Mr. Jas. Steel, I. A. Macrum, Rev. James W. Harris and Rev. Dr. Eells.

We learn by the telegraph that Mr. Conkling's "extraordinary political power" is the cause of many large fees which he receives as a lawyer, and that for two or three days' work in "securing the veto of the steamship immigration bill" he received fifteen thousand dollars from the steamship company. And, further, it is said that he will "pull the wires" in the coming New York campaign. The ex-senator's position as broker in presidential vetoes may be lucrative, but it will not inspire respect throughout the country; while his attitude as wire puller in the New York stalwart marionettes will disgust the best republicans in New York and elsewhere.

Of the population of Washington territory in 1880, 59,313 were native and 15,803 foreign born. The number of inhabitants who were born in Oregon was 8531, or over one ninth of the whole; 3527 were natives of Illinois, 3157 of Missouri, 2975 of New York, 2[illegible] of Iowa, 2687 of Ohio, 2400 of California, 2027 of Indiana and 1882 of Maine. Of the foreign born, Ireland contributes 2243, Germany 2198, Canada 1786, and England 1653.

The prohibition amendment which the Iowa voters voted on two weeks ago is as follows:

No person shall manufacture for sale, or keep for sale as a beverage, any intoxicating liquors whatever, including ale, wine and beer. The general assembly shall, by law, prescribe regulations for the enforcement of the prohibition herein contained, and shall thereby provide suitable penalties for violation of the provisions hereof.

Such an amendment deludes voters with the belief that by putting this in the constitution the business is done, whereas it is not. The constitution does not execute itself, it requires statutes and officers to enforce them; it does not compel legislatures to make these statutes, without which it is a mere blast of words.

The census report gives the average yearly wages of farm hands in Oregon at $24 75 a month, with board. In Ohio the average is $16 [illegible], in Illinois $17 41, and in Iowa $17 75. In South Carolina it falls as low as $8 40; in North Carolina it is $8 80, and in Tennessee $9 50.

The New York brewers have resolved to discontinue the practice of delivering beer on Sunday. They assign as reasons: 1. It is not necessary. 2. Drivers are entitled to a day of rest. 3. It is not right to have beer wagons rattling through the street on Sunday.

READ THE FOLLOWING ENDORSEMENTS!

Portland, Or., July 6, 1882.

We, the undersigned, representing the different fire insurance companies doing business in this city, witnessed a fire test on Saturday evening, June the 24th, by Mr. D. M. Dunne, of the firm of Messrs. KELLY, DUNNE & CO., on a section of shingled roof, painted with two coats of THE CALIFORNIA FIRE AND WATER-PROOF PAINT CO'S PAINT. The roof was subjected to a strong fire, composed of dry kindlings saturated with coal oil, for TWENTY MINUTES. On clearing away the fire, the shingles were only charred. We strongly recommend it for shingled roofs, as we are satisfied that any roof painted with it will not catch fire from brands or any ordinary fire exposure.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 19, 1882.

CITY.

[illegible]—Joseph Ludwig, who was captured last Saturday night in the pantry of William R. B[illegible]'s residence, was brought up in the police court yesterday for examination. He persisted in denying all knowledge of how he came there and says that he has been working all the spring in a logging camp on the Sound. The pocket knife found sticking in the casing, to hold up the window, was shown him and he admitted that it was his. In an inner pocket of his vest was found a small packet of four or five letters written by prisoners in the Seattle penitentiary to friends on the outside, and saying the bearer would deliver them. The letters were urging applications for the writers' pardon, and were sent in this way as the only one by which they could pass the authorities. All of the letters were dated in June of this year, proving conclusively that Ludwig had just left the penitentiary at Seattle before he came here. This fact will probably weigh heavily on his trial at the November term of court, to await which he was bound over in the sum of $500 and in default of bail was sent to jail.

[illegible]—One of Hackety & Beno's horses, attached to a light wagon and driven by Mr. Beno, ran away yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock. Mr. Beno was thrown from the wagon on to the pavement, but escaped with only a bruised thigh. While driving along First street the animal suddenly took fright and dashed away at a breakneck pace up the street. Mr. Beno would probably have controlled him had not the axle of the wagon broken, throwing him out just in front of Prentice's music store. The streets were filled with people and the horse was secured at this point. Mr. Beno was able to pick himself up and walk away without assistance.

Broyles' Booty.—The charge of larceny from a dwelling against David Broyles was heard in the police court yesterday. It is claimed that Broyles, in his capacity as cartman, stole articles of jewelry from persons whose furniture he moved. Mr. Marx testified to losing a pair of sleeve buttons and identified a pair found in Broyles' possession as his. Counsel for the defense moved to dismiss the complaint, as no larceny had been proven, or at most only larceny as bailee. The court took the case under advisement. The charge against Broyles of stealing a pair of bracelets from other parties was continued until to-day at 1 o'clock P. M.

He Borrowed a Shirt.—Charles Spence was arrested by the police yesterday on complaint of Charles Spencer, charged with larceny as bailee. The latter claims that in the kindness of his heart he loaned the former a shirt and "that the said garment still remains upon the person or in the possession of the said Charles Spence." This was several weeks ago, but it seems the garment still possesses attractions for its owner and he wants it back. The case was called in the police court yesterday and continued until to-day.

Killed a Bear.—Last Saturday George and Arthur Clark, aged respectively 16 and 14 years, sons of J. Fred Clark, were hunting with shot guns in the woods near Shoalwater bay, and came upon a large black bear. Instead of running, the older one drew a bead on the animal, and in just a little while bruin was in articulo mortis. The boys tried to carry the bear back to town, but found him too heavy to lift upon their shoulders; so they disembowled him and dragged him to Oysterville amid the plaudits of the entire population.

The Alaska Excursion.—The 21st Infantry band has been secured to accompany the steamer Dakota on the excursion trip to Alaska next month and will furnish music for promenade and dancing. Instead of in the customary hotel manner, the tables will be set in family style for each meal. All the staterooms are roomy, likewise the cabins and deck, and the voyage for the most part will be in sheltered waters, in a most delightful climate. A pleasanter excursion than this promises to be could not be planned.

Committee Appointed.—Dr. J. A. Child, grand master of the A. O. U. W. has announced the following committee to devise a plan for creating the reserve fund for the payment of death assessments: W. D. Hare of Washington county, chairman; J. H. Skidmore of Sheridan, J. J. Walton of Eugene, Dr. J. M. F. Brown of Portland and Wm. Armstrong of Salem. They will submit their report to the grand master and he to the subordinate lodges for approval or rejection.

Threatening to Kill.—Mrs. Kittamire of Sauvie's Island was arrested yesterday by Constable Sprague charged with threatening to kill some women who were picking blackberries on her farm. She was bound over to await the action of the grand jury and released on $250 bail.

A Boomerang.—Jacob Fisher had Mrs. Annie Aschburger arrested, swearing that she stole his cow, but he couldn't make a jury in Justice White's court believe it. They not only acquitted her but assessed the costs of the prosecution, $82, on the prosecuting witness.

Scarcity of Harvesting Hands.—Our correspondent at Gervais writes that harvesting is in full blast on French Prairie, and that hands are very scarce. A large number can get employment in the neighborhood of Gervais.

Better.—The many friends of Mrs. Horace Thielsen will be glad to learn that her condition yesterday was somewhat improved, and that she was resting easy last night.

United States Circuit Court.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning in the case of Hebert vs. the Mutual Life Insurance Co.

JESSE JAMES' DEATH.

AN ACCOUNT BY AN OFFICER WHO KNOWS.

Interview with Marshal Craig of St. Joseph, Giving Particulars of the Murder of the Noted Outlaw.

Mr. [illegible] Craig, formerly city marshal of St. Joseph, Missouri, is in Portland on a visit to his son, Morton R. Craig, who has been for some time in the employ of the O. R. & N. Co. In conversation with an OREGONIAN reporter last evening Mr. Craig told the story of the death of Jesse James, the notorious bandit and outlaw which occurred at St. Joseph during his term of office and with which, by virtue of his authority, he was intimately connected. The circumstances attendant upon the discovery that Jesse James had been shot are very little known, and in this connection are very interesting.

It was on the third of April that Mr. Craig was notified at his office that a man named Howard had just been shot in a small dwelling house near the World's hotel. Mr. Craig at once sent two of his men to the place designated, and himself went to notify the coroner. When he arrived at the house he found hundreds of people passing out and in through the house and in the front room a man lay dead upon the floor. Mr. Craig ordered the house cleared and put his men on guard at the doors.

From this point we give Mr. Craig's story in his own words: "The lady of the house told me her name was Mrs. Thomas Howard, and that two young men named Johnson had killed her husband. She said one of them was his nephew, and had been living with them for some time, while the other had been there only two or three weeks, and, although bearing the same name, were not relatives. Just then one of my men came in and said I was wanted outside. I went out and found an officer in charge of two young men, who, he said, had come up to headquarters and given themselves up as the men who had committed the murder. I asked them if they had killed the man in the house. They both answered, 'Yes.' They said their names were Charles and Robert Ford. I asked him if they were armed, and they replied in the affirmative. I told them they must deliver up their weapons, and each unbuckled a belt from around his waist. The belts were filled with cartridges, and on each were two pistols in holsters. These were the only weapons on them. They then said to me, 'Marshal, that man is Jesse James, and we killed him for the reward, under the advice and with the knowledge of Governor Crittenden.' I told the officers to take the men to the station and guard them with their lives, as there was great excitement since the people understood the murder had been committed without provocation. I then went back to the house and questioned the woman. She said the murder had been committed without provocation. By this time there were a number of reporters from the different papers in the city present who were very anxious to get particulars. I know that as yet none of them suspected the truth, and said to the woman 'Mrs. Howard, you had better be careful what you say to the reporters. Of course they want to know about this matter, and it is right that you should tell them; but you should be guarded about what you say now that you are in trouble, or you may regret it afterward.' Just then a woman called me aside and said she saw Mrs. Howard take a large pistol from between the mattresses of the bed and put it in a trunk in another room. I took Mrs. Howard into the other room and said, 'I want the pistol you took from between the mattresses and put in that trunk.' She said she had done no such a thing. I told her I was positive about it and said, 'If you don't give it to me I must take it.' 'Will you take anything else?' she asked. 'No,' said I, 'but I will be obliged to take everything about the house under my care.' I then said, 'Now, Mrs. Howard I want to tell you that I know all.' She darted a quick look at me, and said, 'You don't know anything.' I replied, 'That man lying dead in there is Jesse James, and you are his wife.' 'Who told you?' she asked. 'Those young men,' I answered. 'They are the Ford boys, and they told me all. There is no use denying it.'

"'You won't rob me?' she asked. I told her no, I didn't rob women, but I must take all the property in charge and hold it until the law made a disposal of it. She then went back to her children.

"I collected the most valuable articles about the house, and, among other things, I found a Remington rifle, a Winchester rifle, a double-barreled shotgun, two Colt's navy revolvers, five pistol cartridge-belts, a shotgun cartridge-belt, a box of jewelry, containing ear-rings, breastpins, finger rings, etc., and two gold watches, valued at about $500 each. One of the watches I took from the dead body. It was afterwards proven to belong to Harrison Roundtree, a prominent attorney of Lebanon, Kentucky, who was robbed of it several years before on the road from the Mammoth cave to Cave City, and was returned to him. The other watch which was in the box of jewelry was found to belong to ex-Gov. John A. Burbank, of Dakota, and this was also returned to its owner afterward.

"I also took a black mare, a fine animal, from the stables which had been stolen from M. R. Richardson, who lives near Liberty, Clay county, Mo.; and a roan horse, belonging to Joe Perkins, and stolen from him about five miles from St. Joseph.

"When the Ford boys killed James they ran immediately to the Hannibal & St. Joseph freight office, where they telegraphed to Gov. Crittenden at Jefferson City, Jim Timberlake, sheriff of Clay Co., and Henry Craig, Police Commissioner of Kansas City, that they had killed Jesse James. They then went to the police headquarters in St. Joseph and gave themselves up.

"Governor Crittenden tried hard to get hold of the property which I had taken in charge and especially Jesse James' weapons, which he wished to put into the state armory as trophies. He telegraphed me to send the property to Kansas City, but I refused, and after the affair was over, returned everything to Mrs. James that had not otherwise been disposed of by law."

Mr. Craig then exhibited some relics of the affair which he had received from the hands of Mrs. James, including two big cartridges from James' revolver, a copper watch chain, which the bandit had were attached to Mr. Roundtree's watch, and a paste ring from the tray of jewelry, all of which had been returned to Mrs. James.

"Have any threats been made against the Ford boys?" asked the reporter.

"Not openly," said Mr. Craig, "but it is generally believed that they will bite the dust some day, killed by some of the old gang."

"How about Mrs. James' lecturing tour?"

"It was not a success. The first night she opened there were but 40 people in the hall and she gave it up. It was not her idea but that of a man who wanted a speculation and offered her a big sum to sit on the platform with her children while he talked."

RAILROAD CONSTRUCTION NEWS.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC NEARLY TO ROCK ISLAND.

Preparations for Navigating the Middle Clark's Fork and Coeur d'Alene Rivers—The Baker City and Palouse Branches.

The OREGONIAN yesterday received the following telegram from Sand Point: "The track reached [illegible] creek last Friday. The bridge over [illegible] river will be done to-morrow, and track laying will [illegible] at the rate of two miles per day to Rock Island."

Rock Island is the foot of navigation in the middle division of Clark's Fork, is 93 miles east of Wallula Junction and about 321 miles from Portland. The new steamer above Rock Island is being put together with all possible dispatch, and is promised to be in service before the last day of July. She will run to the mouth of Thompson's river, a distance of 45 miles from Rock Island, both as a tender to the railroad work and to transport freight and passengers. This stretch of 45 miles covers the ground of the three days' endeavor at a trail through the dense forest, described recently in the OREGONIAN by Mr. [illegible] of the New York Tribune, and reaches the wagon road to Missoula. Passenger stages and freight wagons will be put on the road without delay. It will not take Hallett much longer than forty or fifty days to push road to The [illegible] river, where there is a short rapids. So soon as the road shall have reached this point a temporary double track will be built around the rapids, and the boat hauled out and pulled above them by engines. Above the mouth of the Thompson, there is free navigation to the mouth of the Missoula river, where Clark's Fork ends; thence up the Coeur d'Alene river (marked on the map Flathead river) to Jocko river, a distance of forty miles, where the track leaves the water and turns southeasterly to Missoula. It is not improbable that before the end of [illegible] freight may be shipped from East Portland to Missoula with two handlings: one at the end of the Northern Pacific to the steamer, and from the steamer to teams. Within two weeks only three handlings will be required for Missoula at Bonneville, at Rock Island and at the mouth of the Thompson.

THE BAKER CITY BRANCH.

Track laying on the line from Umatilla to Pendleton has been finished to within ten miles of the latter point. Two Howe truss bridges are yet to be constructed over the Umatilla river, but Pendleton will have the railroad about the middle of September. The Oregon Construction company are pushing things beyond Pendleton, and have 24 miles of very heavy work finished. It will require the entire summer and winter to finish the grading to La Grande, to say nothing of bridge work and track laying.

THE PALOUSE ROAD.

A contract for the construction of this branch has been let to the Oregon Construction company, and work is already commenced. The grade is nearly finished from a point in the neighborhood of Colfax to the big bend of the Palouse, 35 miles west. A good portion of the work was done last year by Steel & McBean. From the Palouse river the line will run westward, joining the Northern Pacific at a point 30 miles from Ainsworth, which will be known as Palouse Junction. From the present eastern end of the grade, the road will run northeasterly 27 miles to Moscow, Idaho. It is the company's intention to finish the line from Moscow to Palouse junction, a distance of 114 miles, before next spring.

"HAZEL KIRKE."

Opening Night of the Madison Square Theatre Company at New Market.

Hazel Kirke as presented last night at New Market, by the company which played it originally at the Madison Square theater, New York, was [illegible] the best played play ever given in Portland. As a dramatic production it is only fair, and at the most contains [illegible]. But the author [illegible] [illegible] four well [illegible] [illegible] the less interesting portions and gives what was left [illegible] satisfactory story. [illegible]

[illegible]

Every seat in the theater was filled, and the play received hearty applause. Miss [illegible] and Mr. [illegible] were each [illegible] called by calls to the footlights. The auditorium was richly decorated with bunting and adorned with flowers, and the stage settings and scenery were in keeping with the play. Extra matinee today at the usual hour. The story of Hazel Kirke is so pure that all may hear it [illegible].

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 19, 1882.

TWO QUAINT OLD TOWNS.

Ramblings Through the Alleys and Arches of Toledo and Cordova.

Richard Wylie, in the Argonaut.

In order to see Spain you must go south of Madrid, and away from the Frenchified, Anglified, and Americanized capital. At least so we thought when we reached Toledo. Innovations are generally at a discount in the grand old conservative spot. Toledo was built shortly after the flood, is said to be the oldest city in Europe, and has no appearance of having changed, or of ever changing. You find it on a commanding site, with a rocky mountain for its base, and the winding Tagus for its natural moat. You cross the magnificent Roman bridge that springs its single arch athwart the current of the ancient river, and supports at either end a massive gate, fit to defy anything but cannon shot. You wind around and up by the battlemented roads, the rich valley beneath the towering Alcazar above; here a Moorish portal, there the entrance of a synagogue, and now the spire of the famed cathedral. It is Spain, with traces of all its marvelous past worked into this historical mosaic—something of every age and realm, and nature, Goth, Moor, Roman, Pagan, Christian, Jew. The whole place is patched like a beggar's suit, and here in Spain the patching of clothes is a fine art, in which, from abundance of leisure, the beggar's excel, with shreds of all ages. To understand Toledo you need to have the whole library of guide-books—Murray, Harper, Eschenbauer, Amicis, O'Shea—and even then, unless you have a memory like that of the Admirable Crichton, and a gift of tongues like Mezzofanti, it will profit you but little. You will have certain vivid pictures and scenes stamped upon your mind—the Cathedral tower, the vista from the Alcazar, the quaint dreamy Zocodover or Market place, the shop where you saw the men making out curious Toledo work, with his hues of golden arabesque upon the steel, which you will remember all the better for the pair of blades you bore away so proudly as souvenirs of the city. You will not forget that picture of the crucifixion of the boy, by the Puerta del Nino Perdido; the transparente, on which a small fortune seems to have been wasted; the marvelous steps of the Puerta del Perdon, so much recommended for their marvelous benefits; the veritable wardrobe of the Virgin, with a fragrant of the true cross; the imposing statue of Santiago (who without any assistance slew sixty thousand Moors, etc.); the wonderful crowns in the Iglesias de los Reyes; the quaint glories of the old synagogues, with the pathos of Ichabod and "the glory is departed" floating over it all, be it of Goth or Moor, of Jew or Catholic that you are reminded.

As we entered Cordova it was hot and glaring high-noon, and amid sundry ineffable scents we reached the Fonda Suizo. The ancient Moorish capital has a situation well nigh enchanting, in the midst of a rich and beautiful valley, amid the olive-yards and orange-groves, by the side of the historic Guadalquiver. One does not think of the beggars, the narrow roads, and the various peculiar odors. You forget them all when you have had time to see the splendid Mesquita Mosque Cathedral, which is the pride of the quaint old slumbering city. It was originally a mosque, and was erected in the palmy days of the Arabian occupation of Spain—five hundred and forty feet long, three hundred and eighty-seven feet wide, with four hundred and fifty pillars, and forty-four aisles. From the main entrance, which you reach by passing through the Patio de la Naranjas, redolent of orange-bloom and adorned with stately palms, you enter the grand aisle, by which you may cross the spacious edifice, and reach, on the opposite side, the mihrab or sanctuario, which, in the original mosque, was the most revered portion of the edifice. View the ceiling, fifteen feet in diameter, in one piece of lovely marble, carved in the form of a concave shell. Notice the walls, in exquisite polished mosaic. Observe the inscription in Arabic, the tracery, as if the work of the jeweler rather than of the sculptor. See how the knees of the faithful have worn the marble of the floor, as they have, during the ages, made the tour of this sanctuary reciting their prayers. As you come out, look in every direction, through the wonderful vistas, in this forest of columns and overhanging arches. Be fortunate enough to hear the organ peal forth upon the scene of enchantment, even though it be in the incongruity of the music of the missal amid these inscriptions from El Koran, and to arouse the echoes of these infidel stones. This is not all. You go forth to the ancient river, and walk in the old gardens of the Moor; you drink of the fountain that his hands placed as it is even now; purchance gather some seeds for your garden from that scarlet-flowered vine that hangs over the crumbling Arabian wall. You mount the old round tower upon the battlements, look out upon the river where four quaint Moorish mills—now all uselessly—obstruct the turbid current. Then, you come down by the fountain of San Rafael, patron of Cordova, and make your way to and across the marvelous bridge of nineteen arches and nineteen centuries, which Roman hands placed, in its immortal beauty and grandeur, athwart the stream. You feel yourself carried still further back into the wondrous past, even to the days of Octavianus, and never, in all your life, have you known a dumb object to speak to you so eloquently as does the sturdy bridge, which seems to span the cycles and ages, and to be a bond of sympathy between a thousand generations.

Peter Donegan, aged 11 years, died in Jacksonville on the 12th inst. from lockjaw, caused by injuries received by the explosion of a toy pistol on the 5th.

A large number of Portuguese have passed through Jacksonville recently, bound for the railroad extension. They hail from Hawkinsville, Siskiyou county, Cal.

Mapes, the well known stock buyer, has purchased Hanley Bros.' cattle in Harney valley, paying $22 50 a head all around. The transaction involved the sum of $30,000.

Some two weeks ago Joe Nash of South Coos river had a calf to die of murrain. In skinning the animal he became poisoned in the left arm and came near losing his life in consequence.

Swarms of crickets are now raiding upon Sprague river valley. They destroy grain and vegetables where found, and unceremoniously enter houses, jump upon the dinner table or crawl on the beds.

While I. D. Applegate's men were hunting cattle in Lake county recently they found fifteen cows, all branded with Calavan's brand, shot to death, and further on they discovered five head of fine mares in the same brand shot to death.

The saw mill at Jefferson, Marion county, owned by W. T. Rigdon and Mr. Thompson, was entirely consumed by fire on the night of the 16th. Loss, about $4000. The fire was discovered about midnight and was evidently the work of an incendiary.

The delinquent tax list left by Sheriff Bybee of Jackson county, upon retiring from office for the second term, amounts to only $1085, of which $529 is on polls that have left the county, leaving only $556 behind. Besides this he has collected $675 on sheriff's assessments, making $119 more than the assessor's books call for.

Last Friday a fire originated in Stewart & Payden's logging camp on the Coquille, about a mile below Beaver slough, which damaged property to the amount of several hundred dollars. The fire started from embers left by a boy who had been melting tallow for greasing skids. It was still burning on Monday and probably will burn until subdued by rain.

The body of Fox, the young man killed by Laue on Grave creek recently, was robbed while he was still lying alongside of the road. A man named Brown was left in charge of the remains, while Wm. Linville, the only other witness, went to Harkness' station for help, and when the latter returned Brown was gone, as also the money Fox had counted out but a short time before, amounting to some $80.

The Oregon Cinnabar and Silver Mining company have had their works, north of Oakland, Douglas county, in operation for the last three or four weeks, and on Friday of last week cleaned up a portion of the condensers and obtained a yield of 600 pounds of quicksilver. This is considered a good yield, considering the furnace and retort were new and would have to be coated before any of the metal would go into the condensers.

Jacksonville Times: The masked men who killed Lee Laws in Lake county, just across the Oregon line on the 24th ult., and mortally wounded his brother, were secreted behind a pile of rocks in front of a deserted cabin where the victims had taken lodgings for the night, while out hunting stock with one Charley Wilson. The latter escaped. Who they were has not been definitely ascertained as yet. These boys may have been hard class and probably needed punishment, but this cowardly and cold-blooded murder will not be generally endorsed. The general impression seems to be that the Laws boys were killed by the elder Calavan and one of his sons, accompanied by another man. This vendetta has resulted in the death of four persons at least, and perhaps hostilities have not ended yet. H. C. Laws is still prowling about Bonanza and vicinity, and making himself generally obnoxious. He does not seem to be as bold since the death of his sons, but is said to threaten bodily harm to many residents of that section.

Washington Territory.

Charles Canby, a resident of Washington territory since 1853, died on Black river on the 13th inst., aged 64 years.

The Eagle brewery at Mukilteo was burned recently. George Cantieni, the brewer, barely escaped with his life. The cause of the fire is unknown. It was discovered at 12 o'clock at night, and burned for several hours. The brewery belonged to F. V. Snyder, and was valued at $2000.

Stetson & Post's new sawmill is now in constant operation, turning out on an average about 30,000 feet of lumber per day of ten hours. This quantity will be increased one-third within the next few weeks. The lumber cutting machinery has been all removed from the old mill, which is now used exclusively as a sash, door, blind and moulding factory.

A Seattle paper says the regents of the university of Washington Territory have tendered the presidency of that institution to Hon. L. J. Powell, superintendent of public instruction in Oregon. Mr. Powell is thinking seriously of accepting the position, and is at present in Seattle looking over the ground. Mr. Powell is an educator of high rank, and the regents are very anxious to secure him for the university.

Some time during Saturday night Theo. Wolf's merchant tailoring establishment at Walla Walla was entered by burglars and goods to the amount of $600 taken. Entrance was probably made through the front door by means of skeleton keys and the cloths taken from the shelf, through the back yard and thence to a wagon in the alley. The burglars must have had some knowledge of the business, as they only took cassimeres and the most expensive black cloths.

Transcript: On Thursday evening, the 6th inst., one of the oldest settlers of the territory, George Waunch, died at his home on the Skookum Chuck. Mr. Waunch came to this territory in 1844, in company with Sidney Ford, Bush and others, and continued to reside here ever since. His death was quite sudden, although he had been afflicted with the asthma for some time. He went to bed as usual, but soon after was heard to gasp for breath, and in a few minutes breathed his last. His age was about 60 years.

Several large fires have been burning during the past week to the south and west of Olympia, making the atmosphere quite smoky and disagreeable. A fire on Thursday on the west side of Mud bay, gave great apprehensions of danger to people living there. By great exertions it was stopped from doing damage, except burning bridges and filling the roads with fallen trees. The farmers prepared wet sacks and put them on their hay and buildings where the cinders fell, many of them flying three miles, and ashes fell quite thick in Olympia, eight miles from the forest fires.

Seattle Intelligencer: It cannot be said that Christianity is losing ground in these parts. In this little town, for instance, including those now building, are six new churches within the short period of eighteen months, besides which the churches built prior to that period have been generally enlarged. In Tacoma three or four churches have been built within the same length of time, and in various other places one or two churches each. It is a safe estimate to say that more new churches have been built in Washington Territory since January 1, 1881, than in the previous five years.

Union: Last Friday Orin Demeris, who lives on upper Dry creek, about 13 miles above Walla Walla, thought it best to destroy a big hornets' nest, located at the barn, and whose inmates were getting too sociable. Fire was applied to the nest and it was destroyed. Then water was applied to the fire, and Mr. Demeris, supposing it was all out, went to bed. About 2 o'clock Saturday morning he was awakened by the roaring of a fire, in time to save a few things from the flames. The fire destroyed two headers, one threshing machine, one span of horses, six sets of harness, and log barns, granaries, sheds, etc., to the number of six. Mr. Demeris estimates his loss at about $2000.

Idaho.

The Sub Rosa mine, near Idaho city, has been sold recently to Eastern parties.

The official census returns show that the number of improved farms in Idaho have increased 355 per cent. during the last decade.

Gov. Neal returns from the north via Ainsworth and Walla Walla by rail, and thence to Boise City by stage, where he is to be present on the 20th.

A streak of high grade galena and carbonate ore was made in the Scoute mine near Galena, about a week ago, at a point 250 feet from the surface. The vein is said to be 12 feet wide.

Camas prairie crops are reported to be in splendid condition. The same is true with many fields in Genesee and Potlatch sections, and in some portions of the northern part of the county, while some spring sown grain will be very light indeed.

A new mining district on the west side of Garfield gulch, about a mile and a half from Muldoon, is said to show four distinct veins running parallel in a southwesterly and northeasterly direction, in a regular Comstock porphyry, and carrying high grade milling ore, showing some sulphur and antimony, but no lead. Sam Wilson and Jim Vlar, two old prospectors, are the lucky men who made the strike.

Eastern Freight Situation.

New York, July 18.—Movement in the freight market via Cape Horn is still very slow, owing in part to the fact that deliveries of merchandise by railroads are still far behind, notwithstanding that considerable work has been done by green freight handlers. This is illustrated by a lot of freight that was shipped at Cleveland June 15, and was only delivered here on the 11th inst., a period of 26 days, or more than the time occupied in sending freight from New York to San Francisco by rail. Deliveries of railroad iron, the main stay of the Clipper line, is at present also very slow, and the Palmyra, although having all of her cargo engaged, has been obliged to wait ten days for her portion of iron, which is now going on board. The Triumphant, having all of her iron, will be loaded by the 22d inst. Rates are about steady at last quotations. The supply of available tonnage is light, owing to improved demand [illegible] and petroleum vessels. For the California trade there is no demand, both lines having all that they require in the present dull state of the market. Freights via Panama are but moderately active for California, but for China there's more inquiry, owing to possible trouble in the Suez canal. Overland freights are kept more quiet than they ought to be by reason of trouble in making shipments. However there seems to be a good quantity of miscellaneous goods got off each day.
